In the review article “Tools used for evaluation of Brazilian children’s quality of life” [Rev Paul Pediatr 2014;32(2):272-8], on page 274, table 1, sixth column (“Availability of the instrument”), on the second line of the table, where it reads: “Free/available from: HealthActCHQ (www.healthact.com/chq.php); Morales²⁶”

It should read:

“Permission needed. Exclusive intellectual property of HACHQ, protected by international copyright laws (<http://www.healthactchq.com/>)”.

On page 276, first column, second paragraph, where it reads:

“More information about the instrument and which languages it has been translated to, as well as one of its versions in full can be obtained on the website HealthActCHQ (<http://www.healthact.com/chq.php>). It is noteworthy that some studies, such as the one by Morales,²⁶ present the full version of the instrument in Portuguese, as well as guidelines for its application and analysis.”

It should read:

“More information about the instrument and which languages it has been translated to can be obtained via the HealthActCHQ portal (<http://www.healthactchq.com/>). It is noteworthy that the instrument is of exclusive intellectual property of HealthActCHQ e and is totally protected by USA and international copyright laws. CHQ cannot be used without permission from HACHQ”.
